THE BOOTBLACK.

The bootblack is a peculiar creature, he The hootblack is a pseuliar ereature, he is migeneris there is none like unto him, and he resembles no one. He is a distinct individual. He stands out prominently among the human addities of a large city, having his own characteristics, his own views of life and nen, and his own opinions of the world. He is a nound, an Arah, a wanderer on the face of the earth. He has no aspirations, no hopes, no ambition. He knows nothing of the past, and cares but little for the future Existence is one lour present to him. The only aim s one long present to him. The only a he has in life is to polish leather. T production of brilliancy is the end and object to which he is devoted. He has me cares, no sorrows, no anticipations, no disappointments. The world may way on; war and blood-sleed may bring bitter tears and keen anguish to the untions; races may be disenthrailed; dynastics crambled and overthrown and new empireserved, but he lives in serene and 'obserial uncon-sciousness of a world beyond his sphere of action, and cares for nothing but an ample supply of fractional currency and an un-Political questions do not agitate his bosom; the fashionable world has no churus for him; tailors' bills are unknown documents. whose mysteries he will never be called upon to saive. The intricacies of polite society he may never bave occasion to unravel. His rhetoric is not that of the schools; his knowledge of literature is confined to the sorgs that are purchased for a penny. Gold may full or rise with-out disturbing his equanimity; quotations of stock do not excute his imagination, of stock do not excite his imagination, not the temptations of the stock board his cupidity. It would be impossible to describe his It would be impossible to describe his origin, or his birth or parentage. He certainly must have had ancestors, but a family tree is a vegetable production concerning which he would display complete ignorance. It is possible that he does not know who his parents are; as far as his knowledge is concerned be may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes and the may simply have great at least two describes the may simply have great at least two describes the may see that the describes the may simply have great at least two describes the may simply the describes have grow, or been wonst a raffle, or been put together by machinery. He is certain of one fact only,—that he is in existence. He never increases in stature, or, if he does, he drops out of the ranks like an over-ripe apple, and goessomewhere else, -nobody knows where or when. Even his garb is peculiar. Did any one ever see him, or even with any part of a suit, any effects. No so one garment that was fresh from the taicient apparel invariably; ragged at the chows and knees; tattered and torn all chows and knees; tattered and torn at over, covered with the uncleantiness that is furthest removed from goddiness, and seemingly unconscious of the blessed and healthful results of a proper and timely application of soap and water. And yet his clothes must have been use once.

one The surved line finds but few illustrations of its comeliness among them. Their faces are prematurely old; they present the pitiful spectacle of youth that is aged in experience, a youth that has had all the softness and tenderness resped out of it by hard contact with the world. They are sharp and shrewed beyond their years; but they are generous and kind to each other, and when occasion calls it forth, from out those long-closed fountains of affection, will bubble up the pure clear stream of tenderness and love that hes unsuspected and unknown beneath the rude form. trations of its comeliness among them

They have no head-quarters, no fixed residence. Their names are not in the directory, and the tax collector never ibles them for the amount of their ineomes. By day you can see them on the State House pavement, sitting in group, ergaged in a said species of gambling with pennies, the winner being decided upon by upturned leads or talls; or you find themeat the hotel doors, where young men of gay and brilliant attire longe against the posts; and stare at passing ladies who that their voluminous skirts through the posts of tobacco-juice which dot the pavement. If there is a suspicion of duliness about your boots, the boot blacks awarm around you with earger appeals to be allowed to "sidile 'em up" or "black 'em," or else with the inbre desfinite application—"black yer bouts." It requires some resolution to restst their evident determination to do so whether you will or not, and you are a locky man if you get off without being "sidinest."

Not only in the daytime do they compregate at the liotel doors, but at night they still pursue their avocation. Far on but the fact hours they perserue the pedestrian with their carnest and determined appeals, until as the State House clock points to the near appreach of midnight appeals, until as the State House clock points to the mear approach of midnight they disappear, not to their homes, for they have none; not to skeep in comfortable beds, for they never press ther heads to a pillow; but, if you have sharp eyes, you may see little forms resting in the shadow of some doorway, curled up on the hard stone step, with the head resting on the box which contains its stock in trade, or within the narrow walls of s dry goods box left upon the pavement, there to sleep as soundly as you in your carved bedstead, and with not half as carved bedstead, and with not half as many thoughts of the morrow, not near a don't say nothing about gristing to drive away the sweet restorer of tired flour and neal from St. Latis.

They never come down late to breakfast, ate toiled. The enting stands at the come of the street gives the bootblack a cup of hydrant in the State House yard suffices him for a wash-stand when he feels inclined to use one. But the bootblack is t particular upon this point; he does not take inturally to water; he is afflicted with general thing. Sometimes he ventures an excursion by steamer to Smith's Island, where any aquatic propensities he may possess can be indulged for a trifle, and those ablutory processes carried on which are otherwise neglected. He is not a relejous creature. The denominational differences of the churches do not affect his mind, nor is he versed in distinc of creeds. He never attends Sunday School, and could not repeat the catechism if you published for it. But he knows al the popular songs of the day; he can sing with an unneltstious earnesness, and whistles with surprising elegance.

Slang expressions he has always at com-mand in profusion, and will make your ook run cold by his murderous attempt to speak the English language if you open a conversation with him. He is a deve threatre with earger delight. With his pocket filled with groundnuts, and his laws in active motion, he leans over the railing waiting for the curtain to rise, but in the meantime gazing at the audienc below, and occasionally dropping nut-shell down in their heads, or else indulging in facetious remarks upon the per-sonal appearance of certain individuals. When the cartam rises, and his first outburst of rapturous appliance has subsided, he remains quiet, criticising quiet, crititisfaction by stamping, by whistling on his flugers, shrill and loud, by loudly ex pressed opinions upon the merits of the song, the breakdown, or the ballet, and by numerous " http://bully for you," ete. Nor is he insensible to the orch oner slo the big fiddle, little fiddle, trombone, and triangle comme than he, with his companions around the whole circle of the gatlery, begin to mark time with a violence that threatens bring down the edifice, and only ce his efforts when the last vibration has died

What coolness may do in such cases was once itiustrated by the great German Doc-ter, Eunic Devricat. The grand theatre at Vienna was crowded. The Emperor once jitus rated by the great German Doctor. Emile Berriert. The grand theatre at Vicena was crowded. The Emperor Francis with several members of his family, were in the imperial box. The play. Schiller's 'Robbers,' had reached its thirdact, when a cry srose that the stage was on fire. Devrient signed at once to the pompter, who lowered the curtain, the actor steping out in front of it ere it wholly felt. In his clear clarion voice he said. There is no fire. The Emperor has been despuiled of an aigreate of diamonds on cutering the theatre. No houest manwill object to being searched, You will pass out one by one at each several entrance and be searched by the police stationed at the saveral doors. Any man attempting to go out of order will be airrested, the crowd, deceived by the coolness and the charge, pourat out. We were in company the other day with a gentleman, hipsirently fifty or sixty cents of age, who used, in additunce, the years of age, who used, in advatance, the following language:

Were I to live my life over again, I should make it a point to do a kinduced to a fellow being whenever I had the opportability. I regret very filuch that diy habit his been so different; and that I have induced feelings to unlike those which would lead to such a source of life.

It has been too much my way to let others take care of themseress, while I take care of themseress, while I take care of myself. If some fittle trespass was committed on my rights, or if I saffered some slight habouvenibude from the thoughtlessiess or self-shows of others, I was greatly amnoyed, and sometimes used harsh, reprouchful language toward the offunder.

But the radicals have no idea of doing my such thing. They only throw out this bait to catch such democrats as were averse to the call of a Convention, and thus get a radical majority in that body. Once in a majority they will forget what they promised, or find some easy pretext to continue in semion. Have they not good reason to hold on? They wish to get hold of the State Government again, and to retain possession. One of the first Acts will be to strike out Article 13 providing for Amendments to the Constitution, so as to leave no amending power at all, or else so alter the article. hile pretending to provide for amendment, it is made practically impossible, Then having secured themselves against the possibility of undoing what they have done, they will proceed to redistrict the whole State. They will redistrict the Senatorial Districts, the Congressional Districts, the Judicial Districts. They will then always be sure of the State Senate. They will be equally sure of a majority in the Congresnal delegation, which will assure North Carolina two or three more negro Representatives. They will get the Judicial Districts to suit them, and give us back Tourgee and Logan and such like, with a negro Judge or two in the Eastern counties,

It is not worth while to suggest any more mischief they will do. The perpetual possession of the State by the radical party must be prevented. The remembrance of its years of misrule should rouse every States, and delegations from the Western white man in the State to come to the polls and Northwestern States, and though not to avert such calamity.

OFFICE HOLDERS TO THE RES-CUE.

All over the State the Radicals show by the eagerness of the office holders to get to the Convention that they are fighting for something more than the mere pleasure of adjourning when they meet in Raleigh. Now, this Constitution against which the ocratic party is protesting was made in the very interest of office holders. It made many offices, it attached good salaries to them, and it gave long terms of office. For this reason the office holders are making desparate efforts to retain the Constitution which favors them so kindly. The people must not indulge these gentry by playing into their hands. They want but few offi ces, they want these offices under their control, and they want salaries somewhat proportioned to the revenue of the State or at least of the ability of the people to pay.

Bear in mind that if the democrats suffor themselves to be beaten now, they are besten for all time. The Concention is d, by one party or the other It is with the Democrats to say, by which.

RADICALISM AND PTOSPERITY.

Says the Cicinnatti Enquirer : In 1863, had about $2200,000,000, twenty two handred millions of dollars in circulating edium. The radical party has contracted it to seven hundred millions. This, has been a wholesale robbery the debtor class. This, has caused a ruinous decline in prices. This has shut the wills. This has put out the fires of the furnaces. This, has closed the stores. This has produced a paralysis of the industry of the country.

That, is one of the ways to tell it : one thing is very certain, if there be, a suffi-cioney of circulating medium; it certainly is not in circulation in this 'neck of woods!' It floats thro' some more favor'd region; and we must trust to providence, and another set of rulers, for our portion of the benefits, secompany a more bountiful supply. The Asheville Citizens says: If the Radical senator Boutwell, the radical govern ment at Washington , Campbell the Civil Rights radical candidate in Cherokee, and the radical party in this State who are secretly pledged to the Civil Rights bill, get control of the Convention, you will get a Constitution, white men of North Carolina, with the Civil Rights Bill in full force, mixed schools, churches and all. Are you ready for it?

The Cotton States Congress met in Raleigh last week. It was attended by rep resentatives from most of the Southern large in numbers, was highly respectable in character. The action of the I ongress was recommendatory in character, but it made who will not have occasion to hang his head suggestions which if acted upon will prove in shame and mortification if he fails to go of great benefit to the South, and to the to the polls to cast his vote for Convention. nation. The report of the agent like, and another swarm of Littlefields and of the Georgia Department of Agriculture develops the fact that the establishment of this branch of the government has already saved to the farmers of Georgia two million dollars. It is an example other States will follow. The debates on financial matters were able and instructive, and if Congress will act upon the suggestions made in the resolutions adopted, it will be that the South will be relieved of the trouble now experienced from the unnatural contraction of the currency.

The Congress adjourned after a session of three days to meet next year in Nash-

Two Judges of the Supreme Court express their opinions; one that the constitution needs amendment; the other that it is revolutionary to adjourn without carrying out the purposes for which the convention was called. OBJECTION TO THE CANBY CON-STITUTION.

The following objections to the Canby Constitution, says the Raleigh News, are patent to every one who has the real inter-est of the State at heart;

1 It increases public expenses by the useless multiplication of offices.

2. It crowded with matter that should be left to the Legislature. 3. It is so confused and complicated that the separate branches of the government are constantly invading the rights of each

4. Its abundance of legislature matter renders our State Government incapable of adapting itself to varying circumstances, 5. It permits a convict just released from the Penitentiary to ense; our laws

6. Its entire machinery is unsuited to our sparsely settled country.
7. It permits 100 great secreey in probate and Justie's Courts, and in Chamber

8. It confines Judges to their circuits,

NEW ORLEANS, July 15,-An interesting legal question arose before Judge Bruce of the United States District court, at this place to-day. William G . Ford, of Memplace to-day. William G. Ford, of Mem-phis, Tenn; was arrested for the shipment in 1868 of 616 bales of cotton from this district, on alleged fraudulent permits. He had been previously indicted in the same court for the same offence, and under the reign of Judge Busteed the indicment had been note prosequied. Since that time Ford has been a resident of Tennessee, and the question was whether the non-residence and absence from the State prevented the running of the statute of limitations. After full argument Judge Bruce refused to july 21 3t.

BRAND AND CORN MEAL FOR COWS.

The Practical Farmer says: it is well settled in the opinion of all our best dairymen that brau greatly promotes the milk secretions in cows, and it is fed almost universally. About equally mixed with corn-meal is the usual proportion. This mixture seems to promote both quantity and quality of milk. From several sources we hear that buckwheat bran is a great producer of mile, and it is being used siderably among our Chester county dairy men, is about the same proportion as the other. Thus, Gawthorp, near West Grove Chester county, also by repeated trials with his own cows, has fully satisfied himself that they do us well with corn and cob most and bran as with pure corn-meal and The amount of nutriment in corn tubs is so very small that this result will have to be explained on the supposition of the ground cob acting to promote digestion by distending the stomach. The presence of bulky material being necessary to pro-mote distension and fill up the stomach of ruminating animals, before digestion can be accomplished, is frequently lost sight of. Hungarian grass is also found for much cows to be rather superior to the ordinary run of hay. The last year or two Hungar-tan grass has loomed up wonderfully in the estimation of our dairy farmers; and a very large scope of land will be sowed with it the coming season. It matures for cutting in about sixty days, and produces two to four tons per scre—the latter of course up-on good soil. Three pecks to the acre is the usual allowance of seed,

Pare milk contains all the elements that constitute the living organism, and it may therefore be regarded as a typical alimen tary substance. It is the only article of diet upon which a human being can, for any considerable length of time, maintain a healthy subsistence. In its composition milk is so like blood that it may be injected into the veins, not only without injury but, if we may credit certain authoritie in case of exhausting hemorrhage and of collaps from cholers with positive life-sav-ing advantage, It is, however, pre-eminen-tly adapted to the support of infancy and childhood, and is good for food in maturer years only as the man has a physical constitution in common with the child. The building up of the sturdy form of manhood requires certain nutritive elements in greater proportion than they exist in milk. therefore becomes necessary to add other articles to diet of the later years of child-hood and more mature life. But milk, furnishing as it does, cream, butter, and various adjuvants in the cooking and preparation of other articles of diet, constitutes or all ages a very important part of the sood of mankind. When pure and good it food of mankind. is, for all who have an appetite for it, a most cutritious and healthy food.

FARMERS CO-OPERATE.

quired a wicked significance in view of farmers. Let them use in-tend of co-operation if they prefer it. Let them remember there is no human being that is entirely independent of all others.

M'atheut association and co-operation, there would be no schools, churches, social institutions or even government.

There may be association for duty as well as for industry, and there is no good reason comparative is olation gmong farmers should longer exist. It has been by associa-tion that the dairy business has advanced to such vast proportions in the United States, especially in the Western and Northeastern portions of it.

It is said the complete success in Dairying has become one of our most important exportations, exceeding in value, in the city of New York, that of the staple grain.

The development of our iron, our wool or cotton manufactories and railroad interest, is all a just source of pride, and has been the result of co-operation. They have grown to proportions, in a financial as well as social view, greater than any of those interests which have required so much of the attention of politicians to systain.

Let the farmers from associations in every county, to import and buy the best blooded stock, to sell their surplus and buy their supplies. Let them have a farmers library in every township in the State, and let them know that it is by their labor the nation is supported. The ignorant ot understand this, but the intelligent will prove the fact. Agriculture is a profession that requires intelligence and judgment than all a though many don't believe it. All other industries begin to flag, fail and die when production stops. What butcher would have stock to kill? What manufacturer cotton to spin? What railroud canal corn or flour to transport? W What merchant could live by selling goods? And oh light think how huggry, pervish and fretful would be those railroad officials, merchants lawyers and doctors, if the farmers would for one season, sit in easy rock-ing chairs and smake their pipes, content make a bare support for themselves and their families and nothing to spare.

HOW TO COOK GREENS.

An English Journal contains the follow ing timely article: Every house-wife himkashe can cook greens—It is the simplest of all dishes; and yet in most cases they are not well served, for much depends upon the manuer in which they are boiled. The water should be soft, and a tables promful of salt added to a large-sized pot of it, which should be boiling hot when the greens are thrown in; and then it should be kept on the boiling gallop, but uncovered until they are done, which can be told by until they are done, which can be told by their sinking to the bottom of the pot, and they should be skimmed out as quickly as ross ble into a colander, so that all the weter will run out. Press them with a small plate, then turn upon a platter, add a large piece of butter, and cut up fine. Serve

The following remely is recommended for the foot rot in sheep: Mix e-riolic cid with an adherent and greasy substance thus forming a plaster which will adhere to the foot of the sheep two or three days, preventing contact of air and allowing time for the production of the healing effect.

Clover the Bisis -Clover lies at the base of successful farming. Besides yieldbase of successful farming. Besides yielding abundant forage crops, it sends its roots deep into the soil, and, as the roots decay, there is left a large amount of mould as a fertilizer, and numerous small crevices for the peneration of water air and the roots of other plants.

THE ALDINE, THE ART JOURNAL OF ARELICA, Issued Monthly,

A Magnificent Conception, wonderfully carried out.

The presenty of a popular modhim for the rep The necessity of a popular medicus for the rep-resentation of the production of our great artists has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the ward. The strees sive futures which so invariably followed each at tempt in this country to establish an art journal did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and as floility to meet it were shown, the public at once railied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great article and commercial triumph— THE ALDIXE.

with enthusiasin to its support, and the result was a great article and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE while issued with all the regularity, has more of the temporary or timely laterate characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of The Aldine will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivats of a similar class, The Alsine is a imague and original conception—alone. rempared with rivats of a similar class, The Ardine is a unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume council duplicate the quantity or number of volumes for tea times the cost and then, there is the Chrono, hesidest. The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no-marrow sense. True art is cosmopositian. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself entirely to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a ward and appreciative set taste, one that will discriminate ently on grounds of intrinse merit. Thus, while placing before the partons of The Aldine, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention, will always be given to specimens from forchy masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or forcign sources.

The artistic illustration of American seenery, original with The Addine, is an important feature and its magnificent plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory terstment of details than can be aforded by any infector page. The indictions interspection of landscape, marine, figure and animal subjects, sustain an unshated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of The Addine is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the actistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.
